On October 8, 2021, the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) finalized a major reform of the international tax system under which multinational enterprises (MNEs) will be subject to a minimum tax rate of 15% from 2023. Of the 140 member countries of the OECD/G20 Inclusive Framework on BEPS, 136 countries and jurisdictions officially announced the “Statement on the Two-Pillar Solution to Address the Tax Challenges Arising from the Digitalisation of the Economy.”

The main points of the speech by the Minister of Finance in response to this were as follows:

- I strongly welcome that the meeting of the Inclusive Framework on BEPS, participated in by 140 countries and jurisdictions, held today reached a historic agreement on the new rules of international taxation.
- Since the inception of the BEPS project in 2013, the Japanese Government has consistently been playing a leading role in discussing the international taxation system. I, therefore, highly commend that a review of the principles of international taxation which have continued for a century now has been agreed under the global framework.
- Japan will continuously work to formulate/ratify multilateral treaties, and amend domestic laws while closely collaborating with individual countries.

It is a very significant achievement in that an agreement on principles on a wide range of public policy issues was reached through cooperation of the Central Bank and MOF in the key area of international monetary and financial order, namely the digitalisation of currency.

On December 6, JFTC announced the closing of the investigation concerned as it has recognized that details of the corrective measures proposed by Rakuten Group would resolve the suspected violation of the Antimonopoly Act. The investigation will be closed after JFTC confirms the Group has further implemented the corrective measures.

Background to the case
- JFTC pointed out that Rakuten Group’s uniform introduction of a common shipping threshold to merchants of Rakuten’s online retail platform (Rakuten Ichiba) could be a legal issue under the Antimonopoly Act.
- In response to the indication, Rakuten Group officially announced that it will take measures that will allow stores to be exempted from the common shipping threshold at their discretion. As a procedure for merchants to apply for exemption was established thereafter, JFTC withdrew its petition and continued its investigation.
- However, as cases were found where treatment disadvantageous to non-participating stores was implied by Rakuten Group when the Group encouraged them to participate in the common shipping threshold, the Group submitted corrective measures to JFTC.
