

Contents

Explanatory Notes	viii
Chapter 1 Current status and problems of the world economy	1
Section 1 The recovering world economy involves structural volatility	1
1. Emerging economies gaining power and advanced economies experiencing sluggish economic recovery	1
2. Current status and problems of US economy	56
3. Current status and problem of China's economy	91
4. Current situation and problem of the economy of Europe	119
Section 2 Risks Involved in the World Economy	130
1. The factors and effects of remarkable rise in prices of food and resources	130
2. The expansion of the financial crisis in Europe	148
Section 3 Aiming at the sustainable and balanced economic growth	160
1. Reconfirmation of the importance of international policy coordination system	160
2. Friction of policies aiming at economic recovery	160
3. Regarding correction of international imbalance	165
4. Development of policies for monetary control reformation and transparency enhancement for prevention of another world economic crisis	167
5. Promoting the free trade system and constructing the strategic foreign economic relation	168
Section 4 East Japan Great Earthquake Disaster: The World Economy, Stabilization efforts by Coordination of Nations	176
1. The world economy appeared an unaffected by the earthquake disaster	176
Chapter 2 Changes in the trade structures of the world and Japan	191
Section 1 Transition of world trade surrounding Japan	191
1. The world economic crisis and changes in the global trade structure	191
2. Deepening and changing the East Asia production network	204
3. Changing global trade structure and Japan's future	222
Section 2 New Trade Partners: MERCOSUR, rapidly expanding the trade led by Brazil	224
1. MERCOSUR Overview	224
2. Movement of economy and trade in Brazil (including Argentina)	236

Section 3 Structural change of trade and economy in Japan	248
1. Structural change of the commerce of Japan	248
2. Changes of economic and industrial structures, and the "ripple effect"	269
3. Influence to ripple structure caused by change of trade structure"	285
4. Conclusion	300
Chapter 3 Toward a new concept for overseas development of Japanese economy	304
Section 1 Re-examination of the global market, and the strategy of the Japanese manufacturing industry	304
1. Income group in emerging countries that is growing rich	304
2. Strategy for the emerging Asian markets	313
3. Emerging countries' challenge for growth and our contribution to it by the business which Japanese manufacturing industry regards as promising	334
4. Global development support measures of the Japanese manufacturing industry	347
Section 2 The "localization" of Japanese companies entering a new stage	354
1. The overseas operation of Japanese companies becoming serious in emerging countries	354
2. Impact on Japanese economy of localization in emerging countries caused by Great East Japan Earthquake	377
Chapter 4 Trade and economic relation between Japan and the world as seen through the damage caused by Great East Japan Earthquake	400
Section 1 The impact of the earthquake on Japanese production and trade	401
1. Status of production and export by Japanese manufacturers before and after the earthquake disaster	401
2. Influence of the direct import and export from disaster-stricken area	408
Section 2 The global supply-chain originating from Japan, recognition of which is renewed clearly through the earthquake damage	419
1. The influence that regional economies of Japan exert on the global supply-chain	419
2. Significance of the disaster-stricken area with the global supply-chain which became clear through the earthquake disaster	436
3. Measures undertaken by the industry toward the recovery of global supply-chain	463
Section 3 Utilizing the experience of the earthquake disaster	470
1. The trend of various enterprises in overseas countries/regions, after the earthquake, and nuclear plant accident	470
2. Measures of Japan for quick dissemination of accurate and transparent information	482

3. Utilizing the experience of the earthquake disaster	494
Chapter 5 Overcoming the earthquake disaster, and revitalizing the Japanese economy	496
Section 1 Policy promotion for the revitalization of Japan	496
1. Guideline for Japan's revitalization ("Guideline on Policy Promotion")	496
2. Towards Japan's revitalization	500
Section 2 Promotion of the multilateral free trade system and creation of strategic external economic relations	501
1. FTAs/EPAs and active promotion of regional economic integration	501
2. Improvement of the business environment by investment agreements and development of international standards	529
3. World Trade Organization (WTO) as a multidirectional free trade system. --3 roles and problems from now on --	540
4. The influence that East Japan Great Earthquake disaster affected to the world supply chain, and importance of the cooperation agreement for the restoration	553
Section 3 Efforts to recover and enhance Japan's locational competitiveness	556
1. Effects of the Great East Japan Earthquake	556
2. The state of the inward direct investment before the earthquake disaster	558
3. Efforts to improve Japan's locational competitiveness	562
Supplementary Note	565
Reference	582
Appendix Tables	594
Index	608
Column 1 The rare metal; attracting attention	145
Column 2 Influence of long term price hike (currency appreciation) against economic structure	268
Column 3 Domestic Input-Output among regions, and "ripple effect" of exports	281
Column 4 Japanese imports of food and resources	311
Column 5 The possibility of the BOP market for the acquisition of the Next volume zone	392
Column 6 Significance of FTA/ EPA	512
Column 7 Undertaking of Economic Research Institute for East Asia and ASEAN (ERIA)	522
Column 8 The cases that Japan intends to settle via referring them to confrontation settlement procedure	550
Column 9 The cases of action to develop rules other than the WTO	551