

Statement on the Ivory Trade

[Caution for buyers]

- International trading of ivory and ivory products is restricted by the Washington Convention. Smuggling ivory out of the country is banned in principle by Japanese law and subject to punishment.

* To export or take ivory out of the country you must obtain written proof from the dealer stating the item was acquired before the enforcement of the Washington Convention, obtain an export permit from the Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry, and declare the item at Customs with the export permit and other necessary documents. Smuggling ivory or ivory products overseas without following this procedure is illegal.

I have understood the above statement and will not smuggle the ivory or ivory product I purchased out of the country.
