

General Situation

I. Survey Tables on Enterprises (Enterprises with 4 or more employees)

The survey tables on enterprises observe activities of establishments engaged in manufacturing industry with 4 or more employees by replacing each establishment to enterprise unit to which the establishment belongs.

The number of establishments engaged in manufacturing industry with 4 or more employees in 2003 was 293,911 (up by 1.1% compared to the previous year). Replacing these establishments to enterprise unit, the number of enterprises was 268,787 (up by 1.4% id.) (Table 1, Figure 1).

(1) Number of enterprises

(i) Looking at the number of enterprises (268,787) by legal status, the number of corporations was 217,892 (down by 0.3% compared to the previous year), accounting for 81.1% of all enterprises. The number of associations and others was 2,221 (down by 0.8% id.), accounting for 0.8% and that of individual enterprises was 48,674 (up by 9.6% id.), accounting for 18.1% (Table 1, Figure 1).

(Note 1) The year-on-year comparison in 1997 is unidentified due to replacement of establishments with 4 or more employees to enterprise unit.

(Note 2) Because of the adjustment of establishments in the 1998 survey, the year-on-year comparisons are based on a time series.

(Note3) Because of the revision of the Japan Standard Industrial Classification in the 2002 survey, the year-on-year comparisons are calculated by incorporating the classification of 2001 into that of 2002.

Furthermore, of all enterprises (268,787), the number of enterprises with 1 establishment was 252,491 (up by 1.6% compared to the previous year), accounting for 93.9% which was the most of all enterprises. The number of enterprises with 2 or more establishments was 16,296 (down by 2.1% id.), accounting for 6.1% (Table 2).

Note: Composition ratio by organization refers to composition ratio of enterprises by legal status and size of capital. Composition ratio by number of enterprises refers to composition ratio of enterprises with 1 establishment or with 2 or more establishments.

(ii) Looking at corporations (217,892) by size of capital or investment (hereinafter referred to as “capital”) (Figure 2), enterprises with capital 10 to less than 30 million yen totaled 105,013 (composition ratio in corporations 48.2%), accounting for nearly the half, followed by 79,500 enterprises with capital less than 10 million yen (36.5% id.), 14,686 enterprises with capital 30 to less than 50 million yen (6.7% id.), 9,875 enterprises with capital 50 to less than 100 million yen (4.5% id.), 3,801 enterprises with capital 100 to less than 300 million yen (1.7% id.), 2,594 enterprises with capital 300 million to less than 1 billion yen (1.2% id.), 1,890 enterprises with capital 1 to less than 10 billion yen (0.9% id.) and 533 enterprises with capital 10 billion yen or more (0.2% id.).

In the year-on-year comparison ratio of the number of enterprises by size of capital, it decreased in all sizes except enterprises with capital less than 10 million yen (up by 1.7% compared to the previous year) and enterprises with capital 50 to less than 100 million yen (up by 0.9% id.).

(iii) Observing the number of enterprises (268,787) by size of workforce (Figure 3), enterprises with less than 30 employees accounted for 85.0% of the total at 228,527. Enterprises with 30 to 99 employees took up 28,323 (composition ratio in all enterprises 10.5%), 100 to 299 employees 8,934 (3.3% id.), 300 to 999 employees 2,408 (0.9% id.), and 1,000 or more employees 595 (0.2% id.).

Although this number increased in enterprises with less than 30 employees (up by 2.0% compared to the previous year), it fell in other size categories, including enterprises with 30 to 99 employees (down by 2.4% id.), 100 to 299 employees (down by 0.4%), 300 to 999 employees (down by 0.6%) and 1000 or more employees (down by 0.3% id.).

(2) Number of employees

(i) The total number of employees was 8,228,150 (down by 1.1% compared to the previous year). By legal status, that number in corporations was 7,861,642 (down by 1.3% id.), accounting for 95.5%. Associations and others take up 0.8% at 62,183 (down by 3.7% id.) and individual enterprises accounted for 3.7% (up by 5.0% id.) at 304,325 (Table 3, Figure 4).

(Note 1) The year-on-year comparison in 1997 is unidentified due to replacement of establishments with 4 or more employees to enterprise unit.

(Note 2) Because of the adjustment of establishments in the 1998 survey, the year-on-year comparisons are based on a time series.

(Note3) Because of the revision of the Japan Standard Industrial Classification in the 2002 survey, the year-on-year comparisons are calculated by incorporating the classification of 2001 into that of 2002.

Furthermore, the number of employees in enterprises with 1 establishment was 4,633,220 (composition ratio in all enterprises 56.3%), down by 0.2% compared to the previous year and that number in enterprises with 2 or more establishments was 3,594,930 (43.7% id.), down by 2.3% id., leading to a decline in both categories. Looking at the composition ratio by size of capital, most of corporations with capital less than 10 million yen have 1 establishment (composition ratio in all enterprises with capital less than 10 million yen 95.2%) and the ratio in corporations with capital more than 10 billion yen and have 2 or more establishments was 95.4%, which was extremely high (Table 4).

Note: Composition ratio by organization refers to composition ratio of enterprises by legal status and size of capital. Composition ratio by number of enterprises refers to composition ratio of enterprises with 1 establishment or with 2 or more establishments.

(ii) Looking at the number of employees in corporations by size of capital (Figure 5), corporations with capital 10 to less than 30 million yen accounted for 27.4%, those with capital 10 billion yen or more accounted for 17.4%, those with capital 1 to less than 10 billion yen accounted for 11.0%, those with 50 to less than 100 million yen accounted for 10.8%, those with less than 10 million yen accounted for 9.7%, those with capital 30 to less than 50 million yen accounted for 9.4%, those with capital 300 million to less than 1 billion yen accounted for 7.7% and those with capital 100 to less than 300 million yen accounted for 6.7%.

Observing the ratio compared to the previous year by size of capital, the number of employees of corporations reduced in all size categories except capital 50 to less than 100 million yen, capital 300 million to less than 1 billion yen, and capital 1 to less than 10 billion yen.

(iii) Observing the number of employees (8,228,150) by size of workforce (Figure 6), it was 2,280,592 in enterprises with less than 30 employees, which accounted for 27.7%, 1,519,189 in enterprises with 30 to 99 employees (composition ratio in all enterprises 18.5%), 1,446,105 in those with 100 to 299 employees (17.6% id.), 1,204,937 in those of 300 to 999 employees (14.6% id.) and 1,777,327 in those with more than 1,000 persons (21.6% id.).

In the year-on-year comparison ratio, although the number of employees by size of workforce increased in enterprises with 300 to 999 employees (up by 0.5% compared to the previous year), it decreased in other size categories such as more than 1000 employees (down by 3.0% id.), 30 to 99 employees (down by 1.7% id.), less than 30 employees (down by 0.6% id.), and 100 to 299 persons (down by 0.4% id.).

(3) Value of manufactured goods shipments

(i) The value of manufactured goods shipments (hereinafter referred to as “shipment value”) was 273.7344 trillion yen (up by 1.6% compared to the previous year). By legal status, shipment value was 270.9313 trillion yen (up by 1.7% id.) incorporations which accounted for 99.0% of the total, 1.2263 trillion yen (down by 4.7% id.) in associations and others which accounted for 0.4% and 1.5768 trillion yen (up by 0.7% id.) which accounted for 0.6% (Table 5, Figure 7).

(Note 1) The year-on-year comparison in 1997 is unidentified due to replacement of establishments with 4 or more employees to enterprise unit.

(Note 2) Because of the adjustment of establishments in the 1998 survey, the year-on-year comparisons are based on a time series.

(Note3) Because of the revision of the Japan Standard Industrial Classification in the 2002 survey, the year-on-year comparisons are calculated by incorporating the classification of 2001 into that of 2002.

In addition, shipment value was 94.4131 trillion yen (up by 2.0% id.) in enterprises with 1 establishment, accounting for 34.5% of the total and 179.3213 trillion yen (up by 1.4% id.) in enterprises with 2 or more establishments, accounting for 65.5% (Table 6).

Furthermore, enterprises with 1 establishment took up most of all enterprises at 93.9%. While they accounted for 56.3% in the number of employees, which was over 50 %, they took up 34.5% in shipment value.

Note: Composition ratio by organization refers to composition ratio of enterprises by legal status and size of capital. Composition ratio by number of enterprises refers to composition ratio of enterprises with 1 establishment or with 2 or more establishments.

(ii) By size of capital, shipment value of corporations (Table 6, Figure 8) was 113.0323 trillion yen, accounting for 41.7% in corporations with capital more than 10 billion yen, 44.2616 trillion yen in corporations with capital 1 to less than 10 billion yen (composition ratio in corporations 16.3%), 32.9986 trillion yen in those with capital 10 to less than 30 million yen (12.2% id.), 22.8271 trillion yen in those with capital 300 million to less than 1 billion yen (8.4% id.), 20.7840 trillion yen in those with capital 50 to less than 100 million yen (7.7% id.), 15.4206 trillion yen in those with capital 100 to less than 300 million yen (5.7% id.), 14.9860 trillion yen in those with capital 30 to less than 50 million yen (5.5% id.) and 6.6211 trillion yen in those with capital less than 10 million yen (2.4% id.).

Looking at the year-on-year shipment value trend at corporations, this shipment value decreased for all size categories of capital less than 30 million yen, and increased for all size categories of capital of 30 million yen or more.

(iii) In shipment value (273.7344 trillion yen) by size of workforce (Figure 9), enterprises with 1,000 or more employees accounted for 45.2% at 123.6410 trillion yen, followed by 300 to 999 employees at 49.7537 trillion yen (composition ratio in the number of enterprises 18.2%), 100 to 299 employees for 39.4149 trillion yen (14.4% id.), 30 to 99 employees for 32.1576 trillion yen (11.7% id.), less than 30 employees for 28.7673 trillion yen (10.5% id.).

Compared to the previous year, shipment value by size of workforce increased for all size categories, including enterprises with 300 to 999 employees (up by 4.4% id.), except for enterprises with less than 30 employees (down by 1.7% compared to the previous year).

(4) Number of employees per enterprise

(i) The number of employees per enterprise was 31 (flat compared to the previous year). By legal status, that number in corporation was 36 (flat id.). The number in corporations with capital 10 billion yen or more was particularly huge, which was 2,567 (down by 63 persons id.). Associations and others had 28 persons per enterprise (down by 1 person id.) and individual enterprises had 6 persons per enterprise (down by 1 person id.) (Table 7).

(ii) The number of employees per enterprise with 1 establishment decreased by 1 person compared to the previous year to 18. By legal status, the number was 21 in corporations (flat compared to the previous year). Although there were increases in corporations with a large amount of capital, such as 10 billion yen or more (620 persons, up by 84 persons id.) and 1 to 10 billion yen (258 persons, up by 7 persons id.), corporations with mid-scale capital of 100 to 300 million yen saw a decrease (99 persons, down by 1 person id.) The number in associations and others and individual enterprises was 21 persons (flat id.) and 6 persons (flat id.) respectively.

The number of employees per enterprise with 2 or more establishments was 221 (flat compared to the previous year). By legal status, corporations remained flat at 224. Of which, the corporations with capital 10 billion yen or more (3,022 persons, down by 125 persons id.) significantly reduced the number. The number in associations and others and individual enterprises was 101 (down by 6 persons id.) and 23 (down by 1 person id.).

(5) Shipment value per enterprise

(i) Shipment value per enterprise was 1.01841 billion yen (up by 0.2% compared to the previous year). By legal status, that of corporations was 1.24342 billion yen. Of which, corporations with capital 10 billion yen or more show prominence at 212.06811 billion yen, followed by corporations with capital 1 to less than 10 billion yen at 23.41882 billion yen and those with capital 300 million to less than 1 billion yen at 8.79997 billion yen. Shipment value in associations and others and individual enterprises was 552.13 million yen and 32.40 million yen respectively (Table 8).

(ii) Shipment value per enterprise with 1 establishment was 373.93 million yen. By legal status, that in corporations was 456.44 million yen. Of which, the value in corporations with capital 10 billion yen or more was 51.96747 billion yen and that in those with capital 1 to less than 10 billion yen was 15.91329 billion yen. In addition, the value in associations and others and individual enterprises was 339.70 million yen and 32.08 million yen respectively.

Shipment value per enterprise with 2 or more establishments was 11.00401 billion yen. By legal status, the value in corporations was 11.20333 billion yen. Of which, corporations with capital 10 billion yen or more show prominence at 249.49904 billion yen. Shipment value in associations and others and individual enterprises was 2.65243 billion yen and 145.73 million yen respectively.

(6) Situation by large enterprise and medium and small sized enterprise

(i) Change in major items

Observing enterprises by large enterprise and medium and small sized enterprise^(Note) (Table 9, Figure 10), the number was 1,894 (composition ratio 0.7%) in large enterprises and 266,893 (99.3% id.) in medium and small sized enterprises that comprise most of enterprises. The number of employees was 2,421,846 (29.4% id.) in large enterprises and 5,806,304 (70.6% id.) in medium and small sized enterprises that comprise nearly two thirds.

Shipment value was 159.1971 trillion yen (58.2% id.) in large enterprises and 114.5374 trillion yen (41.8% id.) in medium and small sized enterprises and large enterprises accounted for more than half.

Compared to the previous year, there were no significant changes in the ratio for all major items.

Note: The definition of a large enterprise and a medium and small sized enterprise is as follows:

Large enterprise: Enterprise with capital more than 300 million yen and number of employees more than 300 persons in "Corporation", enterprise with more than 300 persons in "Associations and others" and "Individual enterprises"

Medium and small sized enterprise: Enterprise with capital 300 million yen or less and number of employees 300 persons or less in "Corporation", enterprise with 300 persons or less in "Associations and others" and "Individual enterprises"

(ii) Trend by industry

Observing the ratio of large enterprises and medium and small sized enterprises by industry (Table 10, Figure 11), the ratio of large enterprises is generally high in "Chemical and allied products", "Information and communication electronics equipment", "Electronic parts and devices", "Petroleum and coal products", "Transportation equipment", "Non-ferrous metals and products", "Iron and steel", and "Electrical machinery, equipment and supplies", and the ratio of medium and small sized enterprises is high in "Leather tanning, leather products, and fur skins", "Apparel and other finished products”, “Lumber and wood products”, “Furniture and fixtures”, “Fabricated metal products”, and “Textile mill products”.

Furthermore, observing the number of large enterprises by industry (Figure 12), machinery industries such as “Transportation equipment” (the number of large enterprises, 243) and “General machinery” 217 id.) accounted for 48% of large enterprises in the overall manufacturing industry, followed by “Food” (193 id.) and “Chemical and allied products”.

II. Survey Tables on Establishments

The survey tables on establishments are about the activities of establishments in manufacturing industry with 4 or more employees, analyzing them by legal status and size of capital.

1. Number of establishments

(1) The number of establishments in manufacturing industry with 4 or more employees in 2003 was 293,911 (up by 1.1% compared to the previous year).

By legal status (Figure 13), the number was 242,401 (down by 0.5% id.) in corporations which accounted for 82.5% of the total, 2,696 (down by 1.8% id.) in associations and others which accounted for 0.9% and 48,814 (up by 9.6% id.) in individual enterprises which accounted for 16.6%.

The characteristics that the number of establishments of each legal status by industry (Figure 14) show that the ratio of establishments in corporations was high in all industries. In particular, in industries such as “Chemical and allied products” (composition ratio 96.5%), “Iron and steel” (92.6% id.), “Petroleum and coal products” (91.5% id.), “General machinery” (90.6% id.) and “Information and communication electronics equipment” (90.4% id.), more than 90% of establishments were corporations. In individual enterprises, “Leather tanning, leather products and fur skins” (40.8% id.), “Apparel and other finished products” (29.8% id.), “Furniture and fixtures” (27.4% id.) and “Textile mill products” (26.8% id.) had relatively high ratio.

(2) Looking at the number of establishments of each legal status by industry (Figure 15), ratio of corporations was high in “Fabricated metal products” (composition ratio 13.3%), “General machinery” (13.3% id.), “Food” (11.0% id.) and “Printing and allied industries” (7.0% id.). Associations and others had the highest ratio in “Food” (39.2%), followed by “Beverages, tobacco and feed” (14.9% id.) and “Lumber and wood products” (14.3%). In individual enterprises, the ratios in “Food” (17.3% id.), “Fabricated metal products” (11.0% id.) and “Apparel and other finished products” (10.8% id.) was high.

Figure 15 Composition ratio of the number of establishments by legal status and industry

2. Number of employees

(1) The number of employees in establishments in manufacturing industry with 4 or more employees in 2003 was 8,228,150 (down by 1.1% compared to the previous year).

By legal status (Figure 16), the number of employees accounted for 95.5% in corporations, which was 7,861,642. The number in associations and others was 62,183 (composition ratio 0.8%) and that in individual enterprises was 304,325 (3.7% id.).

Observing the number of employees by industry and legal status (Figure 17), corporations accounted for more than 80% in all industries other than “Leather tanning, leather products and fur skins”. A form of corporation was taken by most industries including “Iron and steel” (98.9% id.), “Information and communication electronics equipment” (98.9% id.), “Electronic parts and devices” (98.8% id.), “Transportation equipment” (98.7% id.), “General machinery” (98.0% id.), “Electrical machinery, equipment and supplies” (97.9% id.), “Precision instruments and machinery” (97.9% id.), “Petroleum and coal products” (97.5% id.), “Chemical and allied products” (97.4% id.) and “Non-ferrous metals and products” (97.1% id.).

(2) Looking at the number of employees in each legal status by industry (Figure 18), the ratio of corporation was high in “Food” (composition ratio 13.3%), “General machinery” (11.7% id.), “Transportation equipment” (11.0% id.), “Fabricated metal products” (8.0% id.) and “Electrical machinery, equipment and supplies” (7.1% id.). In associations and others, the ratio in “Food” (45.5% id.) was extremely high, followed by “Chemical and allied products” (13.6% id.), “Beverages, tobacco and feed” (8.7% id.) and “Lumber and wood products” (8.3% id.). The ratio in individual enterprises was high in “Food” (18.9% id.), “Apparel and other finished products” (11.6% id.), “Fabricated metal products” (10.2% id.) and “General machinery” (6.0% id.).

3. Shipment value

(1) Shipment value of establishments in manufacturing industry with 4 or more employees in 2003 was 273.7344 trillion yen (up by 1.6% compared to the previous year).

By legal status (Figure 19), shipment value was 270.9313 trillion yen which accounted for 99.0% in establishments of corporations, 1.2263 trillion yen (composition ratio 0.4%) in associations and others and 1.5768 trillion yen (0.6% id.) in individual enterprises.

By industry and legal status (Figure 20), shipment value in corporations exceeded 90% in all industries.

Note: The ratios with the mark * are not shown because of secrecy of data.

(2) Observing shipment value in each legal status by industry (Figure 21), the industries with corporations holding high ratio were “Transportation equipment” (composition ratio 18.4%), “General machinery” (9.6% id.), “Chemical and allied products” (8.5% id.) and “Food” (8.1% id.). In associations and others, “Food” (50.9% id.) accounted for more than 50%. “Chemical and allied products” (15.0% id.) and “Beverages, tobacco and feed” (11.4% id.) followed that. The industries with individual enterprises holding high ratio were “Food” (18.4% id.), “Fabricated metal products” (12.2% id.), “General machinery” (7.2% id.), and “Apparel and other finished products” (7.1% id.).

4. By prefecture

(1) Number of establishments

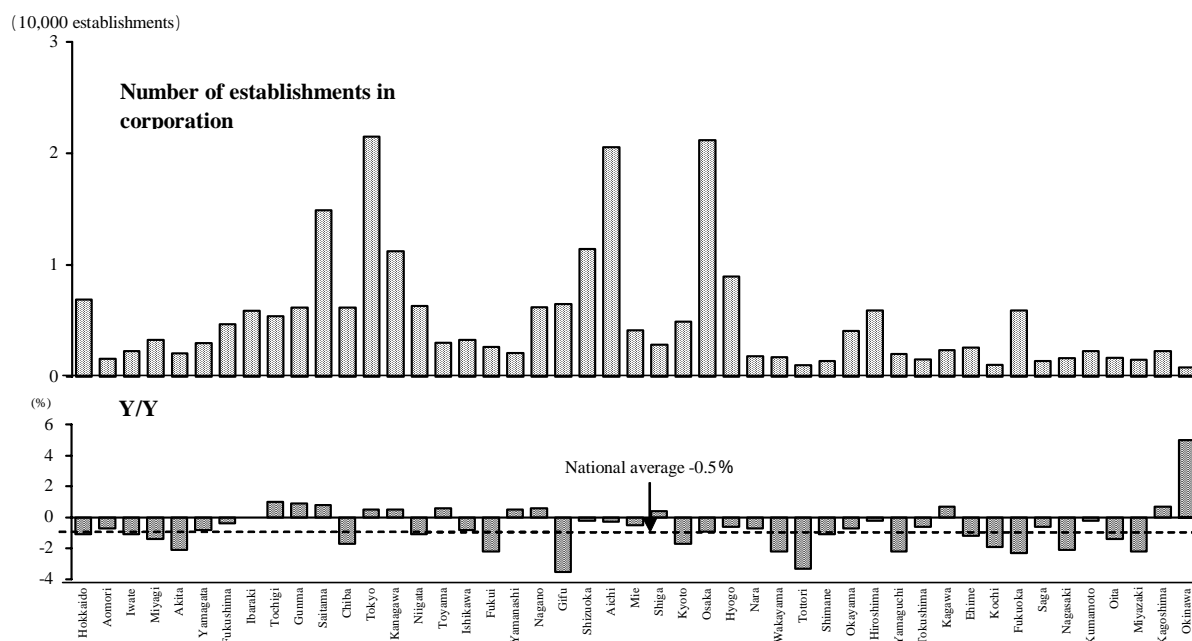

Looking at the number of establishments by legal status (Table 11),

(i) The order of prefectures holding many establishments in corporations (Figure 22) was Tokyo (21,533), Osaka (21,170), Aichi (20,552), Saitama (14,901), Shizuoka (11,411) and Kanagawa (11,214).

By prefecture and industry, most prefectures showed high ratio in “Food”, “Fabricated metal products” and “General machinery”. However, regional variation could be observed such as a high ratio for “Ceramic, stone and clay products” in the Kyushu area, “Apparel and other finished products” in the Tohoku and Chugoku areas, and “Printing and allied industries” in large urban areas such as Tokyo and Osaka.

Observing the number compared to the previous year, it decreased in 34 prefectures including Gifu (down by 3.5% compared to the previous year), Tottori (down by 3.3% id.), Fukuoka (down by 2.3% id.), and Fukui, Wakayama, Yamaguchi, and Miyazaki (down by 2.2% id. respectively), and increased in 12 prefectures including Okinawa (up by 5.0% id.), Tochigi (up by 1.0% id.), and Gunma (up by 0.9% id.). It leveled off in Ibaraki (0.0% id.).

(ii) The number of the establishments in associations and others (Figure 23) was the highest in Kyoto (207), followed by Hokkaido (203), Shizuoka (147), Kagoshima (102) and Gifu (91).

By prefecture, Kyoto had the highest ratio in “Textile mill products”, “Ceramic, stone and clay products” and “Food”, Hokkaido in “Food”, “Lumber and wood products” and “Beverages, tobacco and feed”, Shizuoka in “Beverages, tobacco and feed”, “Food”, and “Lumber and wood products”, Kagoshima in “Food”, “Beverages, tobacco and feed” and “Lumber and wood products”, Gifu in “Food”, “Lumber and wood products”, and “Ceramic, stone and clay products”. Incidentally, the ratio in “Food” was relatively high in all prefectures.

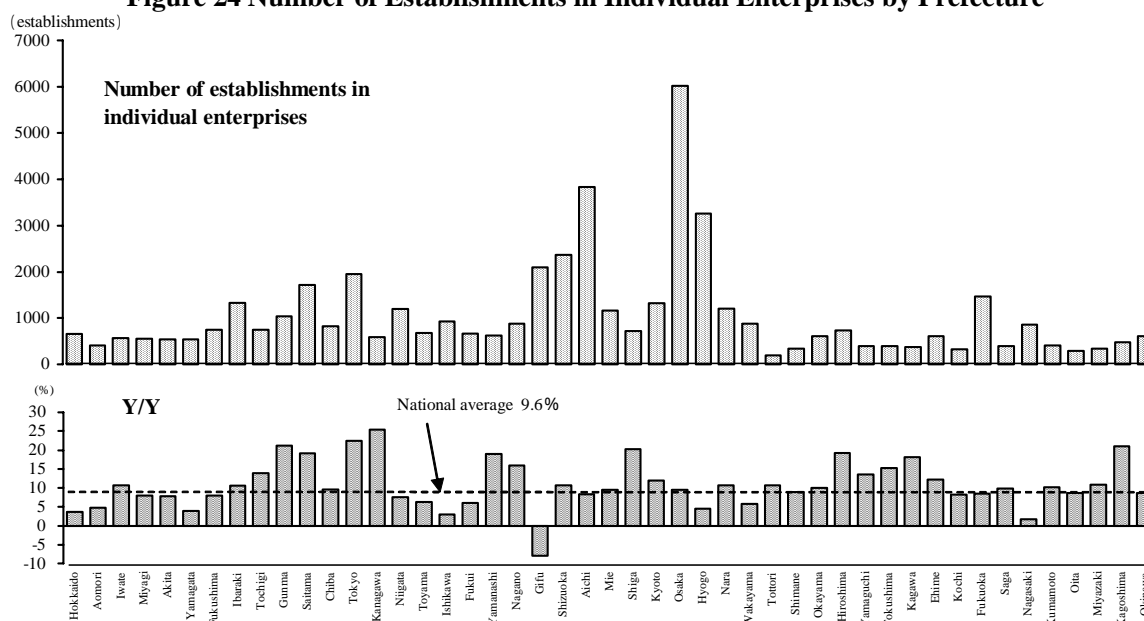

In the year-on-year comparison ratio, the number decreased in 22 prefectures such as Ibaraki (down by 21.6% compared to the previous year), Kyoto (down by 16.9% id.), Yamagata (down by 12.5% id.), Hyogo (down by 10.6% id.), and Shizuoka (down by 7.5% id.), and increased in 18 prefectures such as Nara (up by 36.4% id.), Osaka (up by 22.2% id.), Fukushima (up by 13.0% id.), Tokushima (up by 12.8% id.) and Iwate (up by 10.4% id.). It leveled off in 7 prefectures (0.0% id.).

By prefecture, Osaka and Aichi had high ratios in "Fabricated metal products", "General machinery", and "Apparel and other finished products", Hyogo in "Food", "Leather tanning, leather products and fur skins" and "Fabricated metal products", Shizuoka in "Food", "Transportation equipment" and "Fabricated metal products", Gifu in "Apparel and other finished products", "Food", and "Fabricated metal products", Tokyo in "Fabricated metal products", "Printing and allied industries", and "Apparel and other finished products", and Saitama in "Fabricated metal products", "Apparel and other finished products" and "Plastic products". The ratio of individual establishments in "Food", "Apparel and other finished products" and "Fabricated metal products" was relatively high in most prefectures.

(iv) Comparing the number of establishments of each prefectures by legal status (Table 11), the prefectures with high ratio in corporation were Kanagawa, Tokyo, Saitama, Hiroshima, , Chiba and Tochigi. Those with high ratio in associations and others were, Tottori, Kagoshima, Kochi, Shimane and Miyazaki, and Kyoto. Those with high ratio in individual establishments were Okinawa, Nara, Nagasaki, Wakayama, Hyogo and Gifu.

(2) Shipment value

Looking at the value of shipment (Table 12),

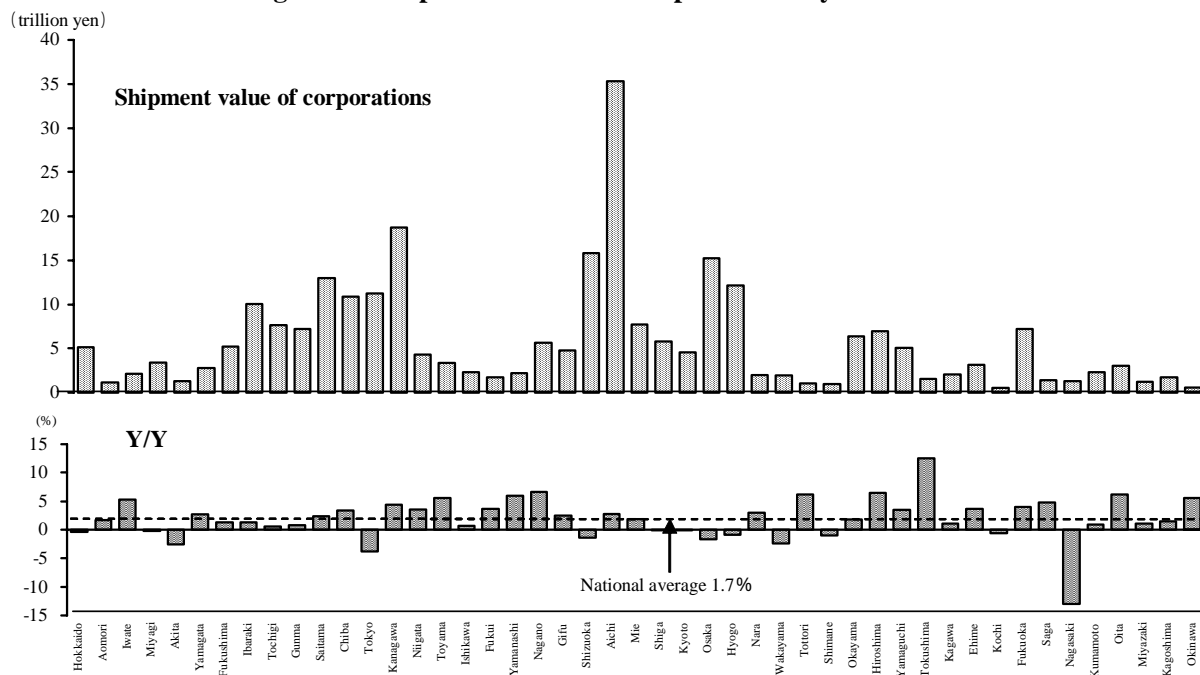

(i) The order of prefectures with high shipment value in corporations (Figure 25) was Aichi (35.3133 trillion yen), Kanagawa (18.7161 trillion yen), Shizuoka (15.8114 trillion yen), Osaka (15.2646 trillion yen), Saitama (12.9965 trillion yen), Hyogo (12.1684 trillion yen), Tokyo (11.2275 trillion yen) and Chiba (10.8432 trillion yen).

By prefecture, Aichi had high ratio in “Transportation equipment”, “General machinery”, and “Electrical machinery, equipment and supplies”, Kanagawa in “Transportation equipment”, “General machinery” and “Chemical and allied products”, Shizuoka in “Transportation equipment”, “Electrical machinery, equipment and supplies” and “Chemical and allied products”, Osaka in “Chemical and allied products”, “General machinery”, and “Fabricated metal products”, Saitama in “Transportation equipment”, “Chemical and allied products”, and “Food” and Hyogo in “General machinery”, “Chemical and allied products” and “Food”.

In the ratio of shipment value by legal status, corporations in all prefectures exceeded 90% (Table 12).

Observing the year-on-year comparison ratio, while there was a decrease in 13 prefectures including Nagasaki (down by 13.0% compared to the previous year), Tokyo (down by 3.8% id.), and Akita (down by 2.6% id.), there was an increase in 34 prefectures including Tokushima (up by 12.5% id.), Nagano (up by 6.7% id.), Hiroshima (up by 6.5% id.), and Tottori and Oita (both up by 6.2% id.).

(ii) The order of prefectures with high value of shipment in associations and others (Figure 26) was Hokkaido (161.5 billion yen), Kumamoto (69.1 billion yen), Shizuoka (68.8 billion yen), Aichi (51.3 billion yen), Kagoshima (48.9 billion yen), Tottori (38.8 billion yen) and Gifu (37.3 billion yen).

By prefecture, Hokkaido had over 70% ratio in “Food”. Kumamoto had high ratios in “Chemical and allied products” “Food”, and “Beverages, tobacco and feed” and “food”, Shizuoka in “Food”, “Beverages, tobacco and feed”, and “Chemical and allied products”, Aichi in “Food”, “Chemical and allied products”, and “Petroleum and coal products”, Kagoshima in “Food”, “Beverages, tobacco and feed”, and “Chemical and allied products”. Incidentally, almost all industries had high ratio in “Food” in associations and others.

In the year-on-year ratio, shipment value decreased in 33 prefectures including Ibaraki (down by 42.2% compared to the previous year), Aichi (down by 38.9% id.), Kanagawa (down by 33.4% id.), Hiroshima (down by 20.7% id.), and Aomori (down by 17.0% id.). It increased in 14 prefectures including Saitama (up by 18.9% id.), Shimane (up by 10.9% id.), and Nara (up by 10.8% id.).

(iii) In shipment value in individual enterprises (Figure 27), the order of prefectures with high value was Osaka (247.0 billion yen), Hyogo (145.1 billion yen), Aichi (119.0 billion yen), Shizuoka (83.7 billion yen), Gifu (60.5 billion yen), Nara (56.1 billion yen), Fukuoka (49.9 billion yen), Tokyo (48.6 billion yen) and Kyoto (44.6 billion yen).

By prefecture, Osaka had high shipment value in “Fabricated metal products”, “Plastic products” and “General machinery”, Hyogo in “Leather tanning, leather products and fur skins”, “Food” and “Fabricated metal products”, Aichi in “Fabricated metal products”, “Food”, and “General machinery”, Shizuoka in “Food”, “Beverages, tobacco and feed”, and “Fabricated metal products”, Gifu in “Ceramic, stone and clay products”, “Apparel and other finished products” and “Fabricated metal products”, and Nara in “Apparel and other finished products”, “Lumber and wood products” and local industry (specialty products).

In the year-on-year comparison ratio, shipment value increased in 29 prefectures including Gunma (up by 13.0% compared to the previous year), Kanagawa (up by 12.4% id.), Saitama (up by 10.8% id.), and Tokushima and Kagoshima (both up by 9.0% id.), while there were decreases in Hokkaido (down by 28.1% id.), Wakayama and Nagasaki (both down by 6.8% id.), Aomori (down by 5.6% id.), and Gifu (down by 4.8% id.).

Enterprise share by industrial commodity

In this section, the shares for the commodities surveyed in the 2003 Census of Manufacture by large enterprise and medium and small sized enterprise and the degree of concentration of top enterprises are verified by sorting the establishment-based data given in the Census of Manufacture with the use of a computer-assisted name identification system. The analysis was conducted using 1,818 manufactured commodities excluding piecework, refrigerating and storage fee and electric power for sale.

For your reference, the data described here refer to value-of-shipment-based data in enterprises with establishments (factories) engaged in the manufacturing industry in Japan. Therefore, the data differs from shares including so-called “market share”. This is as:

- (i) there are differences in units (amount, number and weight base etc.), survey years and definition and range of commodities;
- (ii) the data in this section are value-of-shipment-based data of domestic factories (including export and excluding import) while shares including “market share” generally refer to “domestic share” (excluding export and including import);
- (iii) the data of subsidiaries, affiliated factories and OEM and EMS(*) manufacturers are regarded as those of independent enterprises while share including “market share” generally include data of the product brand or manufacturer.

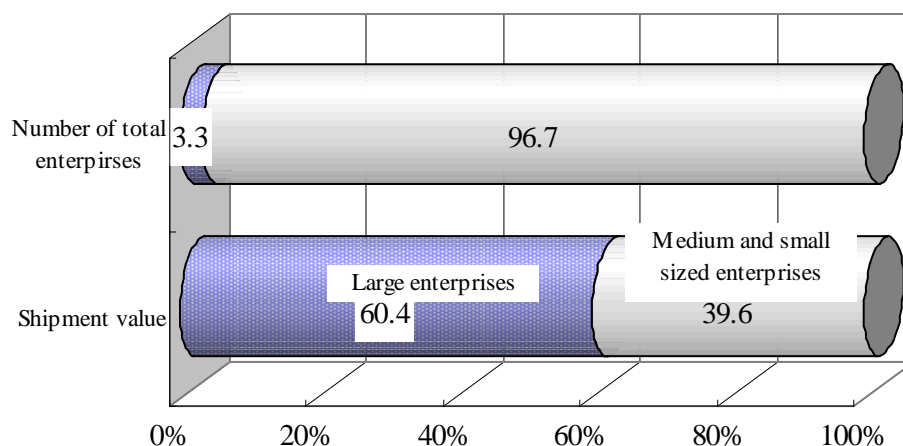

* OEM stands for Original Equipment Manufacturer and means product supply by partner brand.

EMS stands for Electronics Manufacturing Services and means outsourced production of items including printed boards.

1. Composition ratio by large enterprise and medium and small sized enterprise

Observing the commodities by size of enterprise^(Note 1), medium and small sized enterprises accounted for 96.7%, showing a significantly high ratio while large enterprises accounted for only 3.3% out of the total enterprises^(Note 2). On a shipment value basis, however, the ratio was conversely high in large enterprises at the ratio of 60 to 40.

Composition Ratio of the Total Enterprises and Shipment Value by Commodity and Size of Enterprise
(2003, based on enterprise commodities)

Note: In this section, manufacturing commodities are calculated by enterprise unit. Therefore, the data differ from the values for large enterprises and medium and small sized enterprises referred in the previous section. Hereinafter the same.

Note 1: The definitions of a large enterprise and a medium and small sized enterprise are as follows:

Large enterprise: Enterprise with capital of more than 300 million yen and a workforce of more than 300 persons in "Corporation", enterprise with more than 300 persons in "Associations and others" and "Individual enterprises"

Medium and small sized enterprise: Enterprise with capital of 300 million yen or less and a workforce of 300 persons or less in "Corporation", enterprise with a workforce of 300 persons or less in "Associations and others" and "Individual enterprises"

Note 2: The expression "number of total enterprises" is used because enterprises with shipments of more than 1 commodity are counted as "one" in each commodity category since data by commodity and enterprise are used in this section.

Looking at the total number of enterprises based on the commodities' initial two digits, there was a high ratio of large enterprises in the areas of commodities including "information and communication electronics equipment", "chemical and allied products", "petroleum and coal products" and "electronic parts and devices". On the other hand, there was a high ratio of medium and small sized enterprises in commodities including "apparel and other finished products made from fabrics and similar products", "leather tanning, leather products and fur skins", "lumber and wood products, except furniture", "printing and allied industries" and "furniture and fixtures".

Note: The data in this section differ from those in the Report by Industry and Report by Commodity because of calculations based on the initial two digits for the commodities and enterprises

Looking at shipment value, large enterprises showed a high ratio for commodities such as “petroleum and coal products”, “transportation equipment”, “information and communication electronics equipment”, “electronic parts and devices”, “beverages, tobacco and feed”, “chemical and allied products” and “electrical machinery, equipment and supplies”. Medium and small sized enterprises showed a high ratio for commodities including “leather tanning, leather products and fur skins”, “apparel and other finished products made from fabrics and similar materials”, “lumber and wood products except furniture”, “furniture and fixtures”, “textile mill products, except apparel and other finished products made from fabrics and similar materials”, “printing and allied industries” and “food”.

Looking at groups of commodities where large enterprises had a high ratio, in “petroleum and coal products”, large enterprises accounted for well over 90% for commodities including gasoline, naphtha, kerosene, light oil and heavy fuel oil A. In “transportation equipment”, the share was 100% for commodities including passenger cars (light, small and ordinary cars), buses and trucks and motorcycles. In “information and communication electronics equipment”, the share exceeded 90% for commodities including computers (general-purpose computers, business computers and personal computers), optical disks, magnetic disks and flexible disks and liquid crystal televisions.

Looking at groups of commodities where medium and small sized enterprises had a high ratio, such enterprises accounted for 100% in the areas of “leather tanning, leather products and fur skins” and “apparel and other finished products made from fabrics and similar materials”.

Note: The data in this section differ from those in the Report by Industry and Report by Commodity because of calculations based on the initial two digits for commodities and enterprises.

2. Share held by top 3 enterprises

Observing the share held by the top 3 enterprises for each commodity, the most common case was for this share to be “30% to less than 40%”, followed by “40% to less than 50%”, “50% to less than 60%”, and “20% to less than 30%”. The number of commodities where the top 3 enterprises accounted for more than 50% was 915, or 50.3% of all commodities.

3. Herfindahl Index

Looking at the Herfindahl Index^(Note) (hereinafter referred to as “HI”), this showed a high ratio for “iron and steel”, “chemical and allied products”, “transportation equipment”, “petroleum and coal products”, “rubber products”, and “information and communication electronics equipment”.

HI by Initial Two Digits of Commodities
(2003, based on enterprise commodities)

Note: The index is calculated by totaling of squared enterprise shares (%) of each commodity. A higher index value means greater concentration of a commodity at specific enterprises.

For examples, if there are shares of 50% for Company A, 30% for Company B and 20% for Company C in a commodity, the calculation will be as follows:

$$50^2 + 30^2 + 20^2 = 2500 + 900 + 400 = 3800$$

$$\text{Calculation method: Herfindahl Index (HI)} = \sum (X_i/X \times 100)^2$$
